Essential Workers Committed to Client Safety

With the outbreak of coronavirus (COVID-19), you face new challenges to keep your operation running while supporting the health and well-being of your workforce. In these times of uncertainty, we're helping our consulting clients more than ever to provide safe workplaces for employees.

Our consultants are considered essential workers for our clients, so when you engage us, be assured we'll take all precautions when onsite work is required.

This includes closely monitoring the evolving situation related to the pandemic and ensuring that our safety and regulatory experts adhere to strict protocols recommended by the CDC when working onsite with you.

These protocols include:

- Wearing appropriate PPE at all times
- Cleaning and sanitizing all work areas and vehicles they come in contact with
- Practicing social distancing
- Installing transparent in-cab barriers at the client's request
- Following all client-specific safety protocols
- Avoiding client visits when feeling ill

In addition, our work can also be completed remotely in many situations.

Thank you for your continued trust in J. J. Keller.
