Safety & Compliance Consulting for Construction

*Reduce Accidents & Liability
Lower Workers' Comp Costs
Ensure Regulatory Compliance
Minimize Fines & Litigation*

J. J. Keller
& Associates, Inc.[®]

Reducing risks. Reducing costs.

In 2013 alone, 796 construction workers died on the job and 71,730 suffered injuries. During the same year, OSHA conducted thousands of inspections of construction sites, resulting in 36,700 citations and over $62 million in penalties. Those numbers are only likely to increase with OSHA's new programmed inspection plan.

With the help of our safety and compliance services and programs for the construction industry, you can:

- Reduce accidents and liability
- Lower workers' comp costs
- Ensure regulatory compliance
- Minimize fines and litigation
- Control insurance premiums
- Avoid violations and audits
- Increase profitability
- Stay current on industry best practices.

Build a Program to Fit Your Company

Our Programs and Services

Our programs and services are based on an ongoing schedule. They are structured, cost-effective, and designed to keep you in compliance with regulations that apply to your construction activities — at a fraction of the cost of a full-time employee filling this role.

Safety & Compliance Management Program for Construction

A dedicated consultant will start by identifying your company's regulatory risk areas and will deliver continued oversight, program management, records review, and training outlined in your safety and compliance calendar. To help you manage your risk areas more effectively, you'll receive a suite of J. J. Keller™ resources.

OSHA Safety & Compliance Assessment for Construction

An experienced consultant will visit your jobsites to identify areas that need attention and discuss ways to improve them. You'll learn how to implement a more effective training program for your personnel and subcontractors, and you'll receive a roadmap for ongoing compliance with 29 CFR 1926.

How We Help Clients

When a consultant meets with you to discuss compliance, that individual will work with you to understand your construction business and offer guidance based on your unique situation. The result is a high-impact program that supports your business with any combination of the following services:

- Worksite walk-throughs to provide independent, third-party evaluation of your equipment and safety procedures;
- Regularly scheduled visits throughout the year to provide necessary training, review programs, assess progress, and conduct worksite walk-throughs;
- Filing of compliance reports and reviewing of systems to ensure your company maintains compliance throughout the year;
- Development of a company-specific safety and compliance calendar, with activities and deadlines to work from, to ensure compliance;
- Ongoing regulatory support between visits to your worksites;
- Integration of online training and online management tools to make regulatory content and training consistent and accessible for you.

OSHA Policy & Records Review for Construction

One of the most effective ways to guard against employee injuries, and avoid recordkeeping fines, is through a periodic policy and records review. But you don't have to conduct the review internally. With this service, you can save time and resources, and comply with 29 CFR 1904.

Third Party Contractor Prequalification Service

To help reduce incidents and lawsuits, many large organizations are implementing prequalification standards for contractors they hire. We'll help your company get approved by third party prequalification providers, so you'll be better positioned to compete for contracts.
